ACCENT COLORS - OVERVIEW

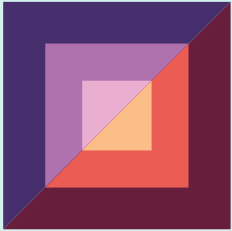

Choose two families: In order to achieve a consistent style across the program while also creating interest with variety from course to course, the multimedia design team member will coordinate two families of accent colors to be used in each individual Art Therapy Program course.

Special dark text color. Use with headings. Use with light background only—medium hues are NOT accessible.

The Web Content Accessibility Guidelines (WCAG) 2.0 stipulate that text colours must have sufficient colour contrast against background colours. This makes it easier for low vision users—and users in general—to read text.

The colour contrast is measured by feeding the RGB (Red, Green, Blue) values for the text colour and the background colour into an equation. If the output is 3.0 or more the contrast is sufficient for large text. If the output is 4.5 or more the contrast is sufficient for standard text. Large text is defined as minimum 18pt or minimum 14pt if bold.

Merriweather

#011313

Rich Black color used as "theater mode" backdrop to videos; darkness helps reduce eye strain

Light accent color 1 or 2

Dominant color; used for quotes and statements; used to help "chunk" content and draw attention to something

#FFFFFF
(PURE WHITE)

Pure white; used as standard background color against dark text (either pure black #000000 or Rich Black color, #011313)

Various color from the two selected color families are used in graphics & illustrations

Dark accent
color 2

Specialty Button color: MUST be used against a light color (#ffffff Pure White is ideal) for sufficient color contrast.

#E8EAEB

Soft Gray; used to "chunk" content or subtly differentiate or draw attention to something

Dark accent

Benefits of Art Therapy

Retrieved from:
<https://www.rtor.org/2018/07/10/benefits-of-art-therapy/>

- Self-discovery: Creating art can help you acknowledge and recognize feelings that have been lurking in your subconscious.
- Self-esteem: The process will give you a feeling of self-accomplishment which can be very valuable to improve your self-appreciation and confidence.
- Emotional release: The greatest benefit of art therapy is giving you a healthy outlet for expressing and letting go all your feelings and fears.
- Stress relief: Fighting anxiety, depression or emotional trauma can be very stressful for you both mentally and physically. Creating art can be used to relieve stress and relax your mind and body.

part 01

Jay was a gulf war veteran who started attending sessions at the request of his wife who identified that the effects of past childhood and war traumas were continuing to impact his professional life and personal relationships. Jay was hesitant to start therapy and was slow to develop trust in the process and in me as his therapist.

1 ● ● ●

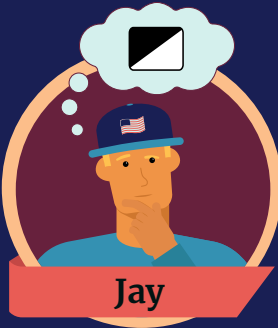

part 02

We did not begin to address any of his trauma specifically until much later in our work together. Initially our focus was around developing positive coping strategies to deal with stress as well as dealing with some immediate concerns and challenges he was having in relationships.

● 2 ● ●

part 03

One challenge that Jay and I identified in examining some of the 'hot spots' in his relationships was his tendency to take a rigid perspective on situations, often lacking the flexibility to see other points of view. He attributed this to 'black and white' thinking – or his inability to see the grey, nuanced aspects of these personal exchanges.
